Irving Fields is an internationally celebrated pianist and all-round musician of dazzling accomplishment and vast popularity. He combines an intimate knowledge of current popular trends, complete control over the entire gamut of artistic expression, plus the knack of stimulating and exciting audiences of all ages and from all walks of life. To the professional musician, he is "the peak of the mountain" among popular pianists, a world leader in his particular arena, and an inspiration to many younger keyboard artists.

Irving Fields has always been a multiple-threat man. Not only is he a superb performer, deft in the ways of projecting his musical image, but he is also a composer and arranger of note, concert artist, and vocal coach, in which latter capacity he has aided such sterling, celebrated names as Steve Lawrence, Ralph Young (of Sandler and Young), Nancy Walker, and Eddie Fisher. He has recorded forty-four successful record albums, including the best-selling 1958 Bagels and Bongos, a
